ANDOVER CO-OP

IT'S NO BIG TRICK TO COLLECT AS MUCH AS $100 FROM THE ANDOVER CO-OP

Suppose it costs you $50 a week to feed your brood. If you join and shop the Andover CO-OP, diligently save your sales slips and turn them in at year's end, the CO-OP may rebate you up to two weeks' grocery money. Or around $100!

Whatever your average weekly grocery budget, multiply it by 2 and that's about what we gave back to our members last year. And when you figure that you're getting the finest foods competitively-priced at the CO-OP, it becomes an even better bargain. It isn't accomplished with mirrors; it's just that the CO-OP is a non-profit, community endeavor for residents of Andover and environs.

It's a neighborly way to do business. And profitable . . . for you. Join and shop CO-OP.

Three Systems Discuss Big Utilities Merger

New England's three largest utility systems, Boston Edison Company, New England Electric System and Northeast Utilities, have agreed to study the possibilities of corporate affiliation.

The companies will undertake exploratory studies of the feasibility of joining together under common ownership. It is expected the studies and the implementation of any resulting plans may take up to two years. Except for such exploratory studies no commitment has been made. Any of the companies may withdraw at any time. "An affiliation of these companies," according to the company heads, "could accelerate regional development, particularly in construction and dispatching of large scale generation and transmission facilities essential in supplying low cost electricity to our customers, both retail and wholesale."

These systems have a long history of interconnected operation. Dramatic changes in recent years, however, in the technology of generation and transmission of electricity indicate the desirability of even greater coordination.

The companies' spokesmen noted that such coordination would be in line with recommendations contained in the National Power Survey.

If the affiliation takes place, it is expected that Boston Edison Company, the New England Electric System's subsidiaries - Massachusetts Electric, Narragansett (R. I.) Electric, Granite State (N.H.) Electric, New England Power and eight Massachusetts gas companies; and the Northeast Utilities' subsidiaries - Connecticut Light & Power, Hartford Electric, Western Massachusetts Electric - would continue to function as operating companies in their respective service areas, within a holding company framework.

The three systems, each active in New England's "Big 11 Power Loop" program which calls for the construction of 11 new electric generating plants and transmission lines costing $1,500,000,000 over the next seven years, account for over two-thirds of all the electric energy used by New Englanders. In addition, gas operating in Massachusetts and Connecticut supply nearly one-quarter of the gas used in the six-state area.

Youth Appeal Court Ruling

Michael J. Toomey, 19, of Brown St., has been released from personal recognizance following his appeal of a $200 fine and sentence resulting from a May auto accident in which one person was killed.

Toomey's car and that of Brian Allen of Epping were involved in the Merrimack crash.

Fifteen year-old Kenneth Mahoney, also of Epping, a passenger in the Allen car, died May 10 of injuries received.

Merrimack police testified in Second District Court, Amesbury, that the crash took place 10 ft. to the left of a solid yellow line. Amesbury officers who assisted with taking the injured persons to hospitals appeared for the defense, however, to report they could not tell where point of impact was. One Amesbury officer said that upon arrival at the scene, he believed the accident had occurred in the middle of the road.

Reading Is Study Topic

Mrs. Irene Fitzgerald, a teacher in the Andover public school system, spoke in Chelmsford recently about the individualized reading pilot program she conducted at South School last term.

In the audience were those educators attending a two-day reading workshop held by the Massachusetts Department of Education, Bureau of Elementary and Secondary Education.

The group included classroom teachers, specialists, supervisors and administrators, together to become better informed about new techniques and approaches in the field of reading.

Sport Car Events Set

The Merrimack Valley Sports Car Club will hold auto competitions at Salisbury State Beach Reservation on Sept. 11, Oct. 9 and 30 and Nov. 13.

Competition and individual time-trials will get underway with technical inspection and driver's practice at 10 a.m., and time trials beginning at 12:05 p.m.

The car competition will consist of nine classes based on engine displacement and performance capabilities, of which there will be six classes in the sports car division, two classes in the American sports-type sedan division and one class in the Women's Division. Trophies will be awarded for first three place in each class.

Navy Chief Re-Enlists Despite Technicalities

How does a Navyman reenlist when the nearest commissioned officer is thousands of miles away and transportation is nonexistent?

This was the problem in Antarctica when Chief Equipment Operator Richard J. Wrigley, USN, of Mrs. Mary Wrigley, 154 High St., decided to "ship over."

The chief is an equipment operator at Palmer Station, located on the Palmer Peninsula, which extends northward toward South America. The "officer-in-charge" there is a chief hospital corpsman but since Navy regulations require that a commissioned officer administer the reenlistment oath it was decided that Commander J. G. Ballou, officer-in-charge of McMurdo Station, 600 miles away, would have to administer the oath.

Transportation to and from McMurdo Station, the Navy's "Operation Deepfreeze" headquarters, is rendered impossible by the harsh Antarctic winter, so contact was established by an air-to-ground voice communication circuit. Commander Ballou took the microphone. Although thousands of miles away Chief Wrigley raised his hand and repeated the oath.

Still another ten thousand miles away, at Davisville, R. I., the paperwork was completed and the U. S. Navy retained the services of chief petty officer Wrigley for another four years.

Crane Was DC Interne

Andrew Crane of Andover, a sophomore at Columbia University, New York, has completed a summer of governmental work in Washington, D. C.

Fifth District Congressman Bradford Morse reports that Crane worked on a variety of legislative problems and became thoroughly familiar with the operation of the Morse office. His research on labor legislation at the time of the airline strike formed the basis of a statement made by the Congressman on the floor of the House. Crane's drafts of legislation on the invasion of privacy will be introduced in the near future, Morse said.

More than 14,000 college and graduate students worked in the Nation's Capitol this summer in connection with an interne program which is designed to stimulate young men and women to seek a career in government.

Duffy Seeks Re-Election

Thomas P. Duffy of Lynn, Essex County Treasurer, has announced that he is a candidate for re-election.

Duffy has held the county post for 18 years.

Reporting on his career in public office, Duffy said this week that the books of his office "have been certified as 100 percent accurate for the past 17 consecutive years."

The treasurer reported that he recently installed systematic bookkeeping machines in his office and that of the Essex County Retirement Board, increasing efficiency and the accuracy of accounting procedures.

Peter Goodman "Interns" At Chicago Art Council

Peter Goodman of Andover was a summer intern with the Illinois Arts Council in Chicago under a civic affairs program sponsored by Brandeis University.

A senior at Brandeis where he is a politics major, Goodman is the son of Mr. and Mrs. George Goodman, 4 Joyce Ter.

The program, developed by Dr. Norton E. Long, chairman of Brandeis' politics department with a grant from the James Gordon Foundation of Chicago, is designed, according to Dr. Long to combat "civic anemia" or "the lack of new faces in the civic structure."

It is intended especially to attract students in academic fields other than politics and government studies.

Its purpose, Dr. Long said, "is to try to interest more qualified people in active roles in local government. A large number of people are needed to serve at the level between elected officials and the career servants - on boards and commissions of government."

The program is supported by the affected agencies, work-study funds from the federal government, and grants from foundations.

of every legislator in this area to concentrate their combined efforts to find a fair and equitable solution to this problem.

Frank S. Giles

827 Riverside Drive, Methuen; vice president, Dok Realty Corp.; age, 51.

1. a. Tax program - I believe in a complete revision of our outmoded tax structure. I have supported it in the past and will again.

b. Civil service - Our civil service system needs a complete reorganization with thought being given to professional qualifications and experience. I would support such legislation.

c. Public education - The Willis plan has committed the State to an ambitious educational program. I would hesitate to support any further legislation at this time until I could be shown the source of the revenue to support it.

d. Housing - I would support legislation for low-income housing in areas where the need has been proven.

William Longworth
(Incumbent)

25 Stevens St., Methuen; Legislative Representative; age, 52.

1. a. Tax program - On a statewide basis we must have a broad based taxation program. This is the only way to prevent confiscatory local property taxes and carry on essential services.

b. Civil service - A real reform of civil service is necessary and overdue.

c. Public education - I supported the Willis recommendations and will do everything I can to improve our educational program.

d. Housing - I support low-income housing for the elderly and where necessary to other segments of our population.

2. The communities comprising my district are in competition with other cities and towns in the Commonwealth in attracting manufacturing and research concerns. 1. a. Tax program - I am in favor of the present limited sales tax.

b. Civil service - Feel that a comprehensive review could bring out recommendations for improving present procedure.

c. Public education - The State should assume its full responsibility for the betterment of higher education and do everything possible to extend facilities for higher education. The same applies to public education.

d. Housing - Present plans would have to be studied before an intelligent comment could be made.

b. Home rule on local issues.

Arthur Williams
(Incumbent)

149 Haverhill St., Andover; Legislative Representative and attorney; age, 50.

1. a. Tax program - With the adoption of the sales tax we have substantially broadened our tax base. The greatest problem is to decide the best formula for the distribution of receipts.

b. Civil service - I have fought for reform in civil service. While I believe veterans should have some preference, it should be on a percentage basis rather than automatically going to the top.

c. Public education - Rigid regulations should not hamper local school committees. Under Gov. Volpe, the state is well on the way to meet responsibility in higher education. With Willis recommendations I expect Massachusetts to be amongst the leaders in education.

d. Housing - Low income housing bills not acted upon as of date. I have studied Governor's recommendations. They should be adopted.

2. I concentrate efforts on all issues affecting my district. I have worked for several years to bring new expressways to area. Lawrence is one of very few cities in the country that is encircled by expressways. None existed when I first went to Legislature.

DEMOCRATIC

Michael J. Clifford

57 Turnpike St., North Andover; attorney; age, 50.

1. a. Tax program - I believe that we should be willing to face up to a somewhat burdensome tax program, in order to make Massachusetts the best and most attractive State in this country; but only after we have accomplished economies in government and have availed ourselves of all the federal funds to which we are entitled.

b. Civil service - Needs revising and closing loopholes which are too often being abused.

c. Public education - Has high priority on my list. Particularly Higher Education. This will, no doubt, add to our tax burden, but will eventually pay off handsomely in exemplifying Massachusetts.

d. Housing, particularly low-income - I strongly favor a program of low income housing. However, I would insist that the program be administered honestly and as intended - present abuse must be eliminated.

2. As a Legislator, I would direct every effort towards any and all issues affecting our district and would regularly meet with my constituents to discuss issues which would effect our District.

Vincent Paul Davey

23 Enmore St., Andover; teacher; age, 39.

1. a. Tax program - Economicality the Sales Tax is ineffective. Morally it is unjust. Paying a percentage of one's Federal Income Tax would answer both these objections.

b. Civil service - Vast improvements have been made. Continued re-evaluation and updating are essential if it is to serve effectively a social that is becoming more technologically orientated.

c. Public education - This most crucial area demands constant attention - covering the spectrum - from medical school needs through vocational training and education in its broadest concept.

d. Housing - Housing is the reflection of a community. It suggests an attitude of concern or indifference. More must be done for those with low limited incomes.

2. The Merrimack River is the most important mutual facility of concern in our district. The life of the district depends - as it always has - on its condition. We must preserve and improve this most essential natural resource. To neglect our obligation here would be to betray all future generations.

John M. Foley

161 Elm St., Andover; trainman; age, 50.

1. a. Tax program - I believe the Commonwealth of Massachusetts should face its responsibilities and pay its bills. Obtaining revenue to fulfill this obligation is one of the most controversial tasks today. In these hectic times of rising food prices and ascending living costs, increased taxation is something we must all learn to live with. As time passes, it seems more apparent that the present limited sales tax not only is proving inadequate at securing the necessary funds, but it also is imposing a cruel hardship on the elderly and all others who are forced to subsist on meager incomes. If elected, I would vote to repeal the present limited sales tax and I would vote in favor of a graduated income tax.

b. Civil service - No answer.

c. Public education - No answer.

d. Housing - No answer.

2. I would concentrate on establishing a sound and effective system of checks and balances reflective of the true attitudes and basic philosophies of our proletarian society and I would provide that needed bi-partisan political leverage for an electorate which has traditionally been short-changed under a heterodox structure of monolithic Republican jurisdiction.

Peter F. Graham

314 Broadway, Methuen; sales supervisor, Continental Baking Co.; age, 57.

1. a. Tax Program - The sales tax was passed by a pro-Democratic legislature at the request of a Republican Governor. This movement indicated how most legislators felt about the sales tax. Being a Selectman of a bordering town of the State of New Hampshire, where there is no sales tax, I feel it has hurt the economic structure of our town. At a public meeting I went on record along with my two colleagues as opposing the sales tax. I believe we need some legislation to help the property owner, but honestly don't believe the sales tax is the answer.

b. Civil service - I believe that Civil Service was intended to solve many problems for communities, but Home Rules were forgotten when it was passed. I believe that as long as we have it, we should adhere to the principles as closely as we can. In some cases the most qualified candidates do not show their merits on an examination paper. I would do my level best to put through the Home Rule program which the Massachusetts Selectmen Association sponsored.

c. Higher education - I believe that the State can not do enough for higher education. Being a former School Committeeman and the father of three teachers, I could be prejudiced on this question. We need more teachers and to interest our young men and women to take up teaching, we must compensate them or big business will take our better teachers. No, I believe that the State should do all in its power to assist in higher education.

2. As a public servant for the last ten years, I have worked to make the town of Methuen a good town. I was born here and here is where I expect to be buried. As a legislator, I would work just as hard to make the 12th Essex District a very good one. Whatever the issues might be, I would speak for my entire district. The problems of my constituents would be my problems and should receive the only a good legislator can give. My record as a public official for the seventh largest town in Massachusetts speaks for itself.

James P. Hurrell

82 Saunders St., North Andover; Senate aide; age, no answer.

1. a. Tax program - As your representative, I would consider it a mandate from the voters of my district to abide with the results of the referendum in the district when voting on any relative forthcoming legislation.

b. Civil service - In order to achieve a true merit system in the Commonwealth, I would support modified revision of the Civil

Also an expanded state scholarship program to enable more graduates of Massachusetts high schools to attend institutions of higher learning.

2. It is with a sense of concern that I would like to see the State take priority on the issue of law and order. As a servant I would strive to uphold the principles which were the basis of our previous generations. Those public officials responsible for maintaining the State should be provided with the legal tools, as well as public support, to carry out their responsibilities.

b. Civil service - The principles of civil service are admirable, but practices in Massachusetts have not entirely matched these principles. I shall support efforts to bring principles and practices together.

c. Public education - I favor full legislative cooperation with the educational boards established by the Willis-Harrington Act.

d. Housing - Everyone should have housing adequate for health, safety and reasonable comfort. Where private and Federal efforts are not sufficient, state and local programs are necessary.

2. Boy Scouts in Troop 75, St. Augustine's Church, re-visited their Jump Reservation Friday and Saturday for a back-packing and other activities.

A planned overnight campout was cancelled because of rain. Making use of the natural state of the AVIS reservation, boys worked to complete Star Scout requirements for service and conservation projects. The boys re-entered an area around an old abandoned cabin to its natural condition and cleared an old service road of fallen trees to permit the passage of emergency and fire fighting vehicles.

Dana Pepin, senior patrol leader for the hike, James Craddock, Stephen Earley, Louis Galbiati, and Thomas Gliss completed their service and conservation project requirements. Thomas Royal completed partial cooking and back-packing requirements; David Mow, Jeffrey Mower, Brian Mow, Michael Saliby and Jeffrey Mow completed the partial back-packing requirement for their first Class Rank; Patrick Doyle and Mark Reilly completed one of their second class hike requirements. Teddy Hatem served as assistant senior patrol leader on the hike.

Mark VonDuyke was welcomed to the Troop at the Aug. 31 meeting as the first new member of this scouting year. Troop 75 meets every Wednesday at 7 p.m. at St. Augustine's School Hall.

RE-ELECT JOHN J. COSTELLO

REGISTER OF PROBATE ESSEX COUNTY

Mrs. John J. Costello
88 Greene St. North Andover

REV. NOSS

ended with the benediction at last Sunday's church service. The interim weeks are for a 1966 vacation.

How Was It?

How was it in Andover when Rev. Noss arrived in 1929?

"Andover was a unit in those days. Everyone was interested in Phillips Academy. Abbot was part of the community then and we all put on our best bib and tucker for the annual reception given there. Everybody went to the football games. And all the businesses were part of the local scene.

"We had a graduating class of 70 to 80. The population was smaller and its interests somehow united. Now so much is going on... there is much less cohesion. Andover is much less like a village and much more like a city."

The pastor contends that people thought much more of "community" in 1929 than they do now. For one thing, the population was stable and people had tradition. Today, he says "Andover is much more like a Western town which has no history."

The town had one part-time real estate man in those days. "He not only helped people who came to town find property, if any one ever did, but he was also the town treasurer" (or perhaps it was tax collector?) In any event, "when a new person came to town in the 30's it was an event!" Rev. Noss recalls.

Which Andover is the pastor's preference? "I'm a horse and buggy man myself," he says. "I prefer stability."

"But I will say that the new people brought new ideas and the town badly needed them." For example, says the minister, "Interest in the quality and nature of schools is far more intense... Massachusetts schools had been good for so long that they had more or less gone to seed in 1929." Schools in Andover, he adds, were better than those in other areas at the time.

The attitudes of Andover businessmen have been stimulated by the new people, also, Rev. Noss believes. There is no comparison, he explains, between the management at Western Electric and that of the old textile giant, American Woolen. "American Woolen was condemned to die. She almost had a death wish," says the retired minister in describing the business climate of the Depression years.

As a piece of more recent history, he reports that at the end of the war the Government made many defense-related discoveries available to industry and invited companies to visit MIT to learn what they could. The textile industry was not interested, he recalls. "Their attitude was, 'What can those boys teach us?'"

There was a good deal too much "financial parsimony" when the Noss family first came to this community, but in the minister's view, there is too little today.

Reminded of how little seemed like a lot to people adjusted to a depression economy, Rev. Noss laughs out loud in telling about one church outing. The young people wanted a beach holiday. "In all the church I could only get the loan of two cars besides my own," he recalls. These came with instructions that no more than six people were to ride in each.

The two cars were loaded and dispatched and when Rev. Noss looked around to see who was left, he counted sixteen heads.

"I put three boys in the back seat of my Packard and three girls on their laps, an arrangement that pleased all concerned. We seated some others on chairs from the kindergarten. There were five of us in the front seat and three boys on the running board when we left for Singing Sand.

"We stayed at the beach from 10 a.m. until after 6... just talking and swimming... I remember it as one of the Golden Days of my life."

How Corny?

Today, says Rev. Noss, no one wants to have a Sunday School picnic or a young folks picnic at the beach. If you mention it, the reaction is "How corny!"

"We used to rent a bus and 200 or 300 people would go and a thunder storm would come up and drench us and we'd have a whale of a time."

"In the 30's people had each other. Today they quarrel and the quarrels tend to remain and they go their separate ways."

"We used to have at least one dinner a month at South Church and get 200 or more people to come out. Now if you have one a year and get 200 people you are lucky."

As part of the explanation, Rev. Noss offers the news that there was just one restaurant in Andover when he came here and no overnight lodging except at Andover Inn.

Rev. Noss had his days as a crusading minister.

Once during the Depression the manager of the local First National store came to him with a problem. He had been ordered by management to start keeping the branch open on Wednesday afternoons. He knew that A&P would follow suit, and that the move would also likely force smaller merchants to eliminate the customary afternoon off.

Rev. Noss took the matter seriously. He said he regarded the hours of store clerks as slaves like, recalling that the regular day was from about 7 a.m. to 6 p.m. and that they were on duty from 7 or so on Saturday until about 12 p.m.

After enlisting the support of every food merchant on Main Street, the minister talked to the superintendents at First National and A&P. He threatened to mention the subject from the pulpit and when he did not get immediate assurances that the chains would cooperate, he did just that.

He stood on Sunday and described the working conditions existing for clerks, declared that even with Wednesday afternoons free the clerks were little better off than serfs and that he felt stores disrupting this tradition should be off limits for Christians. It worked. At the eleventh hour - 12:30 p.m. on Wednesday, to be more nearly exact - First National canceled its executive order and that battle was won.

The crusading minister fought another round with the Boston Herald. Asked to take up the cause of an Andover news dealer, Rev. Noss demanded to know from the Boston newspaper why it had told the dealer it did not intend to open a retail news outlet of its own in Andover when it was but a week or two away from starting such an operation.

He also asked to know why the company had conducted a phony reader-interest survey in town in order to collect the names and addresses of Herald readers.

"The Boston Herald has been lying and stealing in Andover," he said.

The newspaper sent a greenhorn to deal with the Noss complaint... a young man who was naive enough to tell the minister that "You can't conduct a modern business without lying and stealing."

That did it. The pastor announced from his pulpit on Sunday that the Herald was "lying and stealing in Andover" and the following day he was told that 350 subscriptions were cancelled. He chortles over this still. There were only about 200 people in church that day.

To him these two stories illustrate one thing: "Once people are aware of an injustice, they will take action... and they don't need to parade." He adds that this sort of drastic action is no longer necessary. "Business ethics, as publicly exhibited at least, are better than they were in those days," he says.

These are among the memories that Rev. Noss will take along to New Hampshire to the farm where he and his wife will retire.

But there are clear indications that he does not intend to live in the past. He has just purchased a new encyclopedia and the latest Webster's dictionary.

Once during the Depression the manager of the local First National store came to him with a problem. He had been ordered by management to start keeping the branch open on Wednesday afternoons. He knew that A&P would follow suit, and that the move would also likely force smaller merchants to eliminate the customary afternoon off.

Rev. Noss took the matter seriously. He said he regarded the hours of store clerks as slave-like, recalling that the regular day was from about 7 a.m. to 6 p.m. and that they were on duty from 7 or so on Saturday until about 1 p.m.

After enlisting the support of every food merchant on Main Street, the minister talked to the superintendents at First National and A&P. He threatened to mention the subject from the pulpit and when he did not get immediate assurances that the chains would cooperate, he did just that.

He stood on Sunday and described the working conditions existing for clerks, declared that even with Wednesday afternoons free the clerks were little better off than serfs and that he felt stores disrupting this tradition should be off limits for Christians. It worked. At the eleventh hour - 12:30 p.m. on Wednesday, to be more nearly exact - First National canceled its executive order and that battle was won.

The crusading minister fought another round with the Boston Herald. Asked to take up the cause of an Andover news dealer, Rev. Noss demanded to know from the Boston newspaper why it had told the dealer it did not intend to open a retail news outlet of its own in Andover when it was but a week or two away from starting such an operation.

He also asked to know why the company had conducted a phony reader-interest survey in town in order to collect the names and addresses of Herald readers.

"The Boston Herald has been lying and stealing in Andover," he said.

The newspaper sent a greenhorn to deal with the Noss complaint . . . a young man who was naive enough to tell the minister that "You can't conduct a modern business without lying and stealing."

That did it. The pastor announced from his pulpit on Sunday that the Herald was "lying and stealing in Andover" and the following day he was told that 350 subscriptions were cancelled. He chortles over this still. There were only about 200 people in church that day.

To him these two stories illustrate one thing: "Once people are aware of an injustice, they will take action . . . and they don't need to parade." He adds that this sort of drastic action is no longer necessary. "Business ethics, as publicly exhibited at least, are better than they were in those days," he says.

These are among the memories that Rev. Noss will take along to New Hampshire to the farm where he and his wife will retire.

But there are clear indications that he does not intend to live in the past. He has just purchased a new encyclopedia and the latest Webster's dictionary.

Vote September 13

If you are given to being casual about primary elections on the theory that it is the general election that counts, you are way off base.

The merits of primaries are frequently debated and the time may come when the majority will decide that they are a costly antique for a modern Republic. But meanwhile, we have primaries and they are vitally important.

Unless the minority that turns out for the runoff election September 13 is discriminating, you may pick up a ballot in November and discover that you have been left to choose between the lesser of a collection of evils.

In this issue of the TOWNSMAN we are running in toto the replies of candidates for offices that directly affect the future of Andover, Massachusetts to questions on major issues circulated by the Andover League of Women Voters. The responses are revealing. Frighteningly so. It is amazing how many citizens who regard themselves as qualified for public office are unable to make specific criticisms of present governmental practices or suggest specific alternatives.

The cautious voter will be wary of the election hopeful who spouts nothing but banalities. And he will be particularly careful to see that such men are not given the right to wear the label of their chosen political party in the General Election this November.

Vote on September 13.

Creative & Constructive

A bill has been introduced in Congress by 54 House and Senate Republicans. What it proposes is so logical that it seems unbelievable Washington has not instituted such a program as a matter of course.

The legislation submitted would create a National Commission of Public Management with a mandate to determine how new private industry management techniques, those developed for defense and space projects, can be applied to non-defense problems.

Supporters of the bill point out that the major public problems of today are too complex for solution by traditional bureaucratic methods. Specifically mentioned are the problems of transportation, pollution, education, information control, and health services.

Why shouldn't management techniques "that develop weapons systems and help send rockets to the moon be used to better the conditions of life here on earth"? Why not indeed. The systems approach to problem solving makes use of computers and other data processing devices to organize a mass of information, considering all at once the varied component parts. It could unravel enough red tape to keep the right hand abreast of what the left hand is doing in Washington. With so many agencies involved with various aspects of each and every big public problem, this in itself would be no minor function.

The commission proposed would live for about two and one-half years - long enough to evaluate the situation and draft a report that would include recommendations for legislative and administrative action and specific plans for application of systems analysis to the solution of such problems as water pollution.

The proposal has been called "creative and constructive." That it is.

Multiplying Benefits

With a minimum of fanfare, the Commonwealth Service Corps is doing a creditable job of improving the lot of the migrant worker in this area.

They are not performing a single function that an organized community could not have handled on its own, but the Difference is - they are working at it. And the Corps is focusing attention on two areas of concern that have been largely neglected by both Church and State prior to this time - education and citizenship training.

It is too soon to measure long-term gains, but one can be conservative and still submit that the Service Corps Center in Andover is probably doing more good per dollar expended than any other of the new government operated social service agencies functioning in Greater Lawrence.

The benefits are sure to multiply. Every Puerto Rican migrant goes home again in winter and with him goes what he has learned about health care, English and the rights and responsibilities of citizenship.

Two years ago, a public opinion poll showed that 43 percent of those polled did not know that Viet Nam is in Asia.

"It's OK, but you oughta see our new schools back home!"

What Our Readers Say

A Tribute

To the Editor of the TOWNSMAN:

I was deeply saddened to hear of the death of Mr. Bernard M. Kellmurray, whose many years in the Andover school system enriched the lives of many of his associates and all of his students so immeasurably.

He was a scholar of unquestionable ability and above all a man - a teacher - a guidance counselor whose undying love for his work helped direct many a student's steps towards college and ultimately a career.

I am only sorry that I knew him for but one of his years at Andover High, and that being his last before his move to Merrimack College. In spite of the fact that he had difficulties with his eyes, Mr. Kellmurray could recite Shakespeare, Byron, Shelley, Keats and practically any other writer of English-American literature backwards, forwards, sideways and upside down. Such was his love for English and the magic of its writers.

He knew exactly how to get the most out of each of his students and have the students learn the most from him. Nothing more can be demanded or expected from any teacher. He worked for long, tiring hours with several struggling Yearbook staffs and although often kidded about the disarray of his desk and personal papers he was the first to laugh or return the joke with one of his own.

Mr. Kellmurray personally told me that he would do everything possible to see that I got into the college of my choice as an English-Journalism major and I valued that reference as a ticket to success, and much more important as a boost from a friend.

He taught his course as a college preparatory course should be taught and time and again the objects of style and design that we thought so unimportant have helped so very much. He knew college and college professors. He made English grammar fun and he made Shakespeare fun and he made school interesting.

He would tell all students in all of his classes to keep in touch with him after graduation and considered it a pleasure and deemed it an honor to read a warm note from a past student. I know he tried to answer them all, and his untimely passing only makes me sorry that I did not write, for I owed him so much.

Mr. Kellmurray kept after school classes spellbound with Pynchard High School stories and quips and quotes of so many authors that he had stored in his wonderful memory. He was never above a warm greeting in the hallways and valued highly the tenet of fairness to all his pupils.

His alertness, knowledge and natural warmth for others will be sorely missed at Merrimack, as it was when he left Andover. He will be remembered as a teacher and a man - and from myself - a belated Thank You, Mr. Kellmurray, for everything.

A Livable Environment

Man's Habits Dirty The Air He Breathes

by James Breagy

One of the most striking examples of technological damage to the natural environment is the pollution of the air we breathe.

Essentially this is a threat not only to man's physical health and in the long run to his very life, but also to his freedom as well.

Air pollution is not a threat to political freedom. But in a free society man should have the right to protection against technological action which is injurious to him. That air pollution is injurious to man is well established. It is not enough that man be free, but that he be able to breathe freely as well.

Millions of dollars are being spent across the nation on ways to control the emission from fossil fuels. The U. S. Department of Health, Education and Welfare recently handed down an order for control on automobiles to which the manufacturers must adhere in the production of 1967 models.

Yet many scientists feel that pollution control is not the answer. The only way air pollution can be conquered, they say, is for man to change his habits - to adapt to the environment; otherwise our urban centers could be unlivable within 50 years.

Radical changes in man's habits have been recommended. In a book, "The Breath of Life," biologist Donald E. Carr says it is missing the point to try to control emission from automobile exhausts. Man must face up to the fact that the internal-combustion engine must be replaced by the electric automobile powerplant.

At the recent annual meeting of the Air Pollution Control Assn., the world-famous Greek city-planner, C. A. Doxiadis, said that radical solutions such as putting traffic underground in controlled tubes and perhaps linking factory exhausts to networks which would carry emission away must be seriously considered.

At the same meeting, George Arnold, chief of air pollution services, St. Louis County Health Department, and Ed Edgerley, professor of environmental engineering at Washington University, suggested in a joint paper that the answer to factory pollution lies in placing plants at high altitudes where the prevailing winds can be taken advantage of.

To an age which lives by the internal-combustion engine and has factories in city basins, these ideas seem like fantasy. But one wonders if they must not be realized eventually, if man is ever really to breathe freely again.

Magazine readers often exceed population growth. While the U. S. population increased 44.1% since 1938, general magazines increased 340% in circulation, outdoor magazines gained 393%, leisure magazines, 336.5%.

Self-Imposed Curfews New University Ruling

Parents of University of Massachusetts students received an advance look at new residence hall closing hour regulations and security measures that will affect their sons and daughters this fall through a newsletter mailed this week.

Of greatest interest to students and parents is the new regulation regarding closing hours. For the most part, curfews will now be self-imposed by students. The only specific exception during the coming academic year will be a curfew for all freshman women at midnight Sunday through Thursday and 1 a.m. Friday and Saturday nights.

To improve security and safety provisions, all residence halls, fraternities and sororities will be locked at midnight Sunday through Thursday and at 1 a.m. on Friday and Saturday nights.

The number of safety and security personnel within each group of residence halls will be increased, and student employees will be on duty in each residence hall during the hours when students require such services.

Provision will be made in all residence halls for students to record their destination and expected time of return if they so desire. All students who expect to be out after closing hours will be asked to register their expected time of return on sign-out sheets.

In the newsletter parents are urged to discuss sign-out procedures with their sons and daughters in light of their own personal family standards.

Each residence hall will be governed internally by elected students with executive, legislative and judicial functions under uniform University policy. Heads of residence and student counselors will serve as advisers with respect to the internal governmental structure. House governments will be responsible for determining calling hours, quiet hours, music and typing hours.

Since the new rules require student involvement in setting up an internal organization and special staffing procedures, there is no definite date when they will go into effect.

The regulations are based on recommendations made to the dean of students by the student life committee, which has been expanded to include five students along with the five administrators.

According to Dr. William F. Field, dean of students, "The most important part of this new plan is the emphasis on responsible student government within the residence halls. It reflects the confidence of the University in the maturity and good judgment of the vast majority of students."

"As the University accepts brighter and more conscientious students," Dean Field said, "the academic pressures on them increase. It is the responsibility of the University to provide the best possible environment for students to live and work in when they are not in class. By fulfilling their needs within a carefully designed framework, we hope to avoid the large migrations from dormitories that have faced other universities and have resulted in very difficult problems."

Kiernan Has Hat In Ring

William Joseph Kiernan, 68 Phillips St., Lawrence, president and treasurer of North Shore Advertising Co., Inc., has announced his candidacy for the office of Essex County Treasurer.

The Lawrence High School graduate attended Merrimack College and Boston University as well as Palmer College in Davenport, Iowa, from which he graduated.

He is a member and past president of the Concordia Social Club of Lawrence, The South Lawrence Associates, Lawrence British Club and the Merrimack Valley Striper Bass Club. He was affiliated with the Heart Fund of Greater Lawrence and on the original staff of Camp Sea Haven, Plum Island, Newburyport, and a member of Lawrence Lodge 65 BPOE.

The candidate is the son of the late Frank E. Kiernan and Louise (Gullivan) Kiernan.

The starfish is among the most destructive animals within the tidal zone. It destroys thousands of dollars worth of clams and oysters each year.

No Fire - Too Bad!

Pre-teens and teenagers were among those who raced to Bartlett Street Tuesday in response to a fire alarm which rang in at 6:37 p.m.

"Maybe Andover Junior High was ablaze" - this was what could be interpreted from the eager way they rushed to the scene. "Maybe the first day of school would have to be delayed" they were thinking.

But they were out of luck. There was no smoke and no fire. Just a detector that was triggered for some unexplainable reason.

Michael DeMoulas of the DeMoulas market chain told the TOWNSMAN Wednesday that his company is not among those negotiating for the Andover location. "We don't know where that rumor started," he said.

He added that the company expects to break ground about Oct. 1 for construction of a market on a tract of land on Route 114, near the Lawrence-North Andover line. DeMoulas announced plans for a shopping center at this site some months ago.

Mr. DeMoulas said plans for the center are progressing well on paper. A quality department store branch is to be among the retail outlets included in the development.

Car Floors Are Checked

The fall semi-annual motor vehicle inspection will be a rigorous one with added emphasis on the condition of front and rear floors. Cars are to be inspected between now and Oct. 15.

"In an effort to prevent a repetition of a recent accident where a fatality resulted from a rusted-through floor, I have requested station adjusters to test the front and rear floor of all cars four years of age or older to determine whether the rusting has reached a dangerous degree," Registrar Richard E. McLaughlin announces. "Those not meeting this test will be rejected. Any car showing excessive corrosion will be checked regardless of age," the registrar said.

Other equipment which will be checked at the 3100 official inspection stations during the six-week period includes:

Brakes, headlamps, taillamps, (and rear plate light), stop lights, number plates, horn, tires, rear windows (no clouding on convertibles) steering gear (and ball joints), marker lights on commercial vehicles, muffler and exhaust system, bumpers, fenders, and external sheet metal, windshield and windshield wipers, fuel tanks and safety chains (on trailers).

The periodic inspection includes trucks, trailers, motorcycles, motor scooters, school buses, vehicles with farm, dealer, repair, and owner-repair plates in addition to passenger and other types of motor vehicles.

John Johnson Is NASA Guest

John S. Johnson, 9 Union St., an employee of Avco Corporation's space systems division in Lowell, was the guest of the National Aeronautics and Space Administration at the launching of the third up-rated Apollo/Saturn 1 at Kennedy Space Center, Fla., Aug. 25.

Prime mission objective was to qualify for manned flight the Apollo ablative heat shield designed and developed by Avco. Johnson, a senior project engineer at space systems division's materials development department, worked extensively on the heat shield.

The trip to visit the spaceport and view the Apollo launch was in recognition of outstanding performance in NASA's Manned Space Flight Awareness program. The program emphasizes the need for error-free performance in the shops where equipment for manned space flight is built.

The selection of Mr. Johnson for this award was based on his contributions to Avco's PRIDE Program, which works in conjunction with the national Zero Defects Program to stimulate craftsmanship and eliminate errors in workmanship.

AT WELLESLEY

Curriculum Established For '66 Weekday School

The curriculum for the 1966-67 session of the Weekday School of Biblical Studies has been established.

Director Walter E. Aufrecht reported this week on the subject matter for courses to be taught seventh, eighth and ninth grade students on a release time basis through the coming school year.

A summary follows:
Seventh Grade: Survey of the Old Testament. This course will deal with the 39 books of the Old Testament, covering many of the main themes such as covenant, law, prophecy and wisdom literature. Students will be expected to familiarize themselves with the contents of the various books and their historical, geographical and cultural contexts.

Eighth Grade: Survey of the New Testament. Eighth graders will be expected to know the contents of the New Testament. They will deal with the historical and geographical contexts of the various books and thus explore the relation between the two testaments.

Ninth Grade: The Gospel of John. This year, ninth graders will study the Gospel of John in depth, beginning with an introduction to the New Testament world from the development of Judaism through the period of time between the writing of the two testaments. Students will then explore the Jewish, Christian and Greek world in which the writer of the Gospel of John lived, dealing with such things as the Dead Sea Scrolls, the settlement at Qumran, Jewish life and religion, the structure of the early Christian Church and the politics of the times.

Because the school is concerned with scholarship and not with relating the Bible to life situations (thus giving interpretation) students are encouraged to bring their own Bibles. Although the school will provide the Revised Standard Version, any of the variety of translations available may be used. In this way, students are made aware of the fact that they are not working with the original language of the Bible. Teachers take pains to point out differences in texts where they exist, and refer the students to their parents and/or clergyman when an interpretative explanation is needed, Aufrecht said.

The school opens Tuesday, Sept. 13 at 11:20 a.m. Parents who wish to enroll their children may do so by returning the card mailed last week or by sending their children to the first session.

This program, open to all students at Andover Junior High School, is sponsored by the Andover Council of Churches to give students the opportunity to have direct contact with this major document of Western Civilization in an academic atmosphere. No creeds, beliefs or religious perspectives are taught. Students are expected to know only the contents and historic context of the Bible, the director said. For further information write: Walter E. Aufrecht, 25 Central St.

Clerk Seeks Fourth Term

Register of Probate John J. Costello, has announced his candidacy for re-election to a fourth six-year term as clerk of the county Probate Court.

The veteran county official has held elective office for more than twenty-five years. He launched his career in 1939, when, as a 22-year-old college student, he was elected to public office in his home town of North Andover. He served there on the school committee and the planning board.

In 1946 he won the Democratic nomination for Register of Probate and was later appointed to a vacancy in the office by the late Governor Maurice J. Tobin. Defeated at the November election, he recaptured the probate post at the regular election in 1948. He was re-elected in 1954 and 1960.

Costello was also a 1942 candidate for state representative in the old Fourth Essex District. Active in civic and social welfare causes, he served as general chairman of the 1960 American Cancer Society drive in Lawrence. He is a member of Lawrence General Hospital, the Bon Secours Hospital Guild, and the North Andover Community Center.

Register Costello attended North Andover schools, and St. John's Preparatory School in Danvers. He received a Bachelor of Science degree in American Government from Harvard College in 1940, and a Master's degree from the Boston College Graduate School a year later.

He is a member of Essex Institute, the Men of Merrimack, Harvard Club of Andover, Greater Lawrence Boston College Club, and the North Andover Scholarship Foundation.

A parishioner of St. Michael's Church in North Andover, he is a charter member and the first treasurer of the Monsignor Francis L. Shea Council 3819 of the Knights of Columbus. He is an associate of the National Council of Catholic Men.

Register Costello is single and makes his home with his mother, Mrs. Agnes Costello at the family residence in North Andover. His father was the late John J. Costello.

Since then she has been taking graduate education and library courses at the same institution and plans to continue this fall.

Mrs. Alexander has worked with Camp Fire Girls as counselor and has taught Bible school and Sunday school. Now that her four children are all in school she is pursuing her desire to work with children in the Shawsheen school library.

Mrs. Jacobson and her husband Larry and their three children live at 113 Woburn St., Andover. The children are 12, 11 and 10. She obtained her AB degree in history with a minor in political science from the University of California and has done graduate work in education. She is currently working at Simmons for her master's degree in library science. Her teaching experience was gained in Windsor and Montpelier, Vermont. She lists sports, gardening and reading as things she likes to do in her spare time.

Extended Loans
An extended loan period which runs until Dec. 15 is in effect now at Memorial Hall Library in response to the interest of readers. The summer vacation loan period which is just ending met with favor from borrowers. The idea is being carried on for those with fall vacations and for those who simply would like to take out their favorite books for three months.

Any book a year old which does not appear on a reading list may be borrowed on the extended loan and will not become due until the middle of December. Inquire at the desk for the long loan when checking out your books. A display of long loan books appears on top of the catalog in the Main Reading room on the top floor of the library.

History &amp; Travel

In accordance with the master plan for moving books to their new permanent locations by stages, the "900's" which include history of all periods and nations, travel to anywhere, biographies (92 for the life of an individual and 920 - something for lives of more than one person) journals and letters of public figures and autobiographies are now located on the mezzanine. This is the first time in many years that space at Memorial Hall Library has permitted bringing all these books about people and places in various periods of time together. It is a logical arrangement since the library numbers on the spines of all these books start with 9. Browsing among the 900's should be much more convenient now.

RAIN RAISES

about 2-1/4 inches were registered in the level of the pond.

The rains did not dump enough water to set Fish Brook running, Bassett reported. The swamps that feed this stream were so dry that there has been little runoff; certainly not enough, Bassett said, to permit reactivation of the transmission line to Haggatts.

The water superintendent said there appeared to be no appreciable improvement in the condition of the Shawsheen, of interest because of the water shortage being experienced by Raytheon Co. He said that a visual estimate set the level of the Merrimack at two feet higher than prior to the weekend.

Orthodox food crops at present occupy about one-seventh of the earth's land surface.

Arkoian - Ozoonian

Rosemary Louise Ozoonian, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John Ozoonian, 98 Osgood St., and Moses Arkoian, son of Mrs. Levon Arkoian, Silver Spring, Md., and the late Mr. Arkoian, were married Aug. 21 at Holy Cross Armenian Apostolic Church, Lawrence.

Rev. Father Vartan Avakian officiated.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a formal gown of white organza over ivory taffeta. The bolero band of re-embroidered Alencon lace accented the portrait Empire bodice. A deep border of the same lace formed a scalloped hemline on the slim A-line skirt and a wide chapel train fell from the high backed waistline. Her tiered bouffant veil of silk illusion was attached to a contoured crown of seed pearls and crystals. The bride carried a white prayer book with a white orchid and stephanotis and rosary streamers.

Miss Gale Lynch of Watertown, cousin of the bride, was maid of honor. She wore an Empire gown of beige organza over canary yellow taffeta. A band of scalloped lace with embroidered ribbon running through the center encircled the high waist. She wore a soft bow headpiece with full veiling in canary yellow and carried a bouquet of white daisies with a center of ice pink roses.

Gowned identically were the bridesmaids, Miss Patricia Najarian of Watertown, a cousin of the bride, and Miss Marion McCarthy of South Boston.

Miss Linda Boghigian from Nashua, N. H., cousin of the bride, was flower girl. She was dressed in an Empire gown of white organza over mint green taffeta with a dark green bow circling the waist. Her headpiece was a halo of fresh daisies.

For her daughter's wedding, Mrs. Ozoonian wore a long aqua crepe gown with a beaded bodice with matching accessories and a white orchid. The bridegroom's mother was dressed in a light blue crepe gown with a draped bodice. She wore a lavender orchid.

Best man for the ceremony was Garabad Arkoian, of Springfield, Va., brother of the groom. Ushers were Paul Arkoian of Silver Spring, Md., brother of the groom; Kenneth Ozoonian of Andover, brother of the bride; Richard Keuroglian, from Washington, D. C., cousin of the groom; and Jack Krikorian of Cheverly, Md.

A reception at Andover Country Club followed the ceremony.

Following a wedding trip to Montego Bay, Ocho Rios and Kingston, Jamaica, the couple will live at 8100 Gorman Ave., Laurel, Md.

The bride is a graduate of Abbot Academy and Boston University. She is employed by the Department of Defense in Washington, D. C.

Her husband, a graduate of American University, Washington, D. C., is employed as a sales representative by Univac Data Processing Center, Silver Spring, Md.

MRS. CLEMENT JAMES CONNORS (Cole)

Connors - Coutts

Ruth Alice Coutts, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William Gordon Coutts, 2818 N-E 31st Ter., Fort Lauderdale, Fla. former Andover residents, and Clement James Connors, son of Mrs. Rose Connors, Tewksbury, were married Sept. 3 in an afternoon ceremony at St. William's Church, Tewksbury.

Rev. Garrett Barry OMI officiated.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a white angel mist sheath with an illusion veil attached to a crown of pearls and rhinestones. She carried white roses and orchids.

Her matron of honor, Mrs. C. F. Shattuck of Ballardvale, was dressed in blue peau de sole. She wore matching accessories and carried blue carnations.

Dressed similarly in pink peau de sole were two bridesmaids, Miss Leslie Hilton of Andover, cousin of the bride and Miss Anne Fiorante of Methuen. The misses Maxine and Linda Heselson of Andover were flower girls. They wore pink and blue gowns styled to blend with those of the other attendants.

For her daughter's wedding, Mrs. Coutts wore a yellow silk suit with blue accessories and a pink rose corsage. The mother of the bridegroom wore a blue lace gown with beige accessories and a corsage of yellow roses.

C. F. Shattuck Jr. of Ballardvale was best man for the ceremony. Edward Shea of Lowell and Michael Gladki of Metalrie, La., a former Tewksbury resident, were ushers.

A reception was held at the 400 Lounge, Methuen, after which the couple left for a wedding trip which is to include stops in Florida, Texas and Washington, D. C.

After Sept. 17 the couple will be residents at 1129 Main St., Tewksbury.

The bride, a graduate of Andover High School, is a nurse at Burke Hospital, Lawrence. Mr. Connors is a graduate of Tewksbury High School. He is a mechanic at a local service station.

BUSINESS PROFILES*"Salesmen"

Pictured above is the friendly sales staff of the Harrison-Park Corporation, your local authorized Volkswagen dealer, at 222 Lowell Street in Lawrence. From the front of the bus to the rear, they are William A. Hodge, Sales Manager; Edward A. Saul; Richard L. Prescott; Joseph R. Volungus and Wallace C. Greenlay. They still have many new 1966 Volkswagens in stock in several different models and a fine selection of used Volkswagens which they will be happy to show you. Why not stop in for a test drive and see what great value Volkswagen offers you in either a pleasure or business vehicle? You can't beat the convenience and economy of a Volkswagen. With the engine in back pressing down on the drive wheels, you get better traction. The engine is air-cooled, which means no radiator, no radiator problems, no overheating and no freezing. Models include the popular VW Sedan; the VW Sunroof, which has a sliding steel panel that fits flush with the roof on the outside and matches the rest of the roof inside; the VW Convertible; the VW Deluxe Station Wagon, commonly known as a bus; the VW Karmann Ghia that looks like a sports car; the VW Karmann Ghia Convertible that looks even more like a sports car; the VW Fastback Sedan that doesn't look like a Volkswagen at all; the VS Squareback that looks like a station wagon; and the VW Campermobile that sleeps two adults and two children.

Harrison-Park Corporation was founded in 1959 by Arthur E. Park and John A. Harrison and was originally located on Route 28 in Salem, New Hampshire. In July of 1962, Harrison-Park Corporation established itself in the Greater Lawrence area when it purchased land in the Lawrence Re-development section and constructed an ultra-modern building which houses reception and general office facilities, a beautifully decorated showroom, a service area and a complete parts department. They offer the ultimate in service by mechanics who have all been factory trained by Volkswagen. Visit their showrooms, see the new and used Volkswagens in stock and learn why you can bank on VW Preventive Maintenance. Harrison-Park offers day and night service, open Monday through Friday from 7 A.M. till midnight.

Practical Arts School Offering Six Courses

The fall term of the Andover Evening Practical Arts School will begin Sept. 16, offering adults an opportunity to study beginners sewing, advanced sewing, tailoring, rug braiding, knitting and cake decorating.

Evening School Director Richard E. Neal reports that classes will be held four days a week with two scheduled for Monday evenings, two for Tuesdays, three for Wednesdays and one for Thursdays. The courses are offered free of charge.

Registrations may be made by telephone or mail or at specific registration sessions to be held Wednesday and Thursday, Sept. 14 and 15 from 7 to 8 p.m. at the guidance office at Andover Junior High School.

Persons wishing to register by telephone may call Neal at the Junior High School and written applications may be sent directly to him c/o Andover Junior High School, Bartlett Street, Andover.

Neal reports that enrollment in all classes is limited and he recommends early registration. Out-of-town applicants will be accepted if there are openings, but Andover residents will have first choice, the director said. Eligible to attend are persons over 16 who are not enrolled in a daytime secondary school.

All six classes will meet at three-hour sessions for ten weeks in the fall and ten weeks in the spring, with the exception of cake decorating. This latter group will meet for five weeks with four different classes scheduled. These four classes will begin on the following dates: Sept. 19, Oct. 24, Jan. 9, and Feb. 13. Neal will accept registrations for any of these four sessions immediately.

The classes will be held from 7 to 10 p.m. in the East wing of the junior high school, with the exception of rug braiding which will be held in the cafeteria of the same school.

Two sections of sewing for beginners are being offered, one on Tuesdays and one on Wednesdays. Classes will include instruction in use of a sewing machine, inserting of zippers, making button holes and achieving a professional look in sewing. The instructor will be Mrs. Mildred Hyde.

Miss Angie Calcina will teach the two sections of advanced sewing, meeting on Mondays and Wednesdays. This course is open only to those persons who have completed a beginners sewing course.

Miss Calcina will also teach tailoring on Thursdays. This course is for the most advanced sewing students.

The rug braiding class will be taught by Mrs. Jessie Caswell. This course, on Tuesday evenings, will stress fundamentals of design and techniques.

Mrs. Caswell will also teach the knitting on Wednesday evenings.

The cake decorating course is to be taught by Mrs. Eleanor Donovan.

Evening School brochures are available at Andover Junior High School.

Awards will be presented to the three top communities in six contest classes at a luncheon in West Harwich Sept. 23, during the 38th annual meeting of the Selectmen's Assn. The three-day event will be held Sept. 22, 23 and 24.
